개성을 존중하는 몬테소리 교육법

Children are curious about everything and love learning, but many children dislike going to school. Children especially hate taking tests. In 1897, Maria Montessori

(a) (introduce) Montessori education as a way to change the education system.

The main goal of Montessori education is to help students find their own interests.

- (A) And this interest may lead them to learn more about Egyptian history and culture.
  - (B) Once students find an interesting topic, they are then encouraged to explore similar topics.
  - (C) For example, while studying geography, students might become interested in one particular country such as Egypt.

This kind of learning (b) (allow) students to learn at their own pace.

In Montessori education, teachers do not control the classroom. Instead, they help students become active learners. Since Montessori schools don't give grades, there is no need for students to fear tests!
