1　　"Cats always land on their feet" is a common saying among cat lovers. If you have a pet cat, you might have noticed this yourself. When a cat falls down, it (A) [rarely / usually] turns around and lands on its feet. Many cat owners have been surprised to see this amazing ability. What gives a cat this (B) [slow / rapid]

5　turning ability?

　　Scientists have been arguing about this for a long time. For a cat to begin rotating, there must be a turning _____. To understand this, scientists recorded a wild cat falling from a tree. They (C) [found / founded] the answer by studying the video in slow motion.

10　　Cats have very flexible spines. They can turn their upper bodies in the opposite direction of their lower bodies. This gives them the force needed to twist around in the air. So if your pet cat falls down, don't worry. It should be okay.
